

Partnering with United Rheumatology

United Rheumatology, a management service organization, serves as the bridge between patient, provider and payor — to advance and support the practice of independent rheumatology.

Currently our membership includes 475 providers with 200 practices in 36 states. The first two quarters in 2018 showed 17% growth over the prior quarter membership numbers. We are growing rapidly as rheumatologists want to remain independent but need support. Our current breakdown is shown here in the table.

There are many ways to partner with United Rheumatology:

1. Sponsor and exhibit at our Medical Policy Committee and National Policy meetings held four times a year in various locations around the US
2. Work with our data warehouse, a community rheumatology patients' electronic medical records that spans 155 physicians, 42 practices with over 300,000 currently active patients with encounter dates as of January 2016. The data is updated daily and no other data set exists like the UR database
3. Research collaborations, including assessing the impact of therapies, interventions and/or education on various quality and efficiency objectives
4. Contract with our UR-GPO for office administered products
5. Partner with our practices with novel practice management tools and resources, built specifically for the independent rheumatologist in mind
